

spatial imagination
7EA6B20
tkachuk mariia

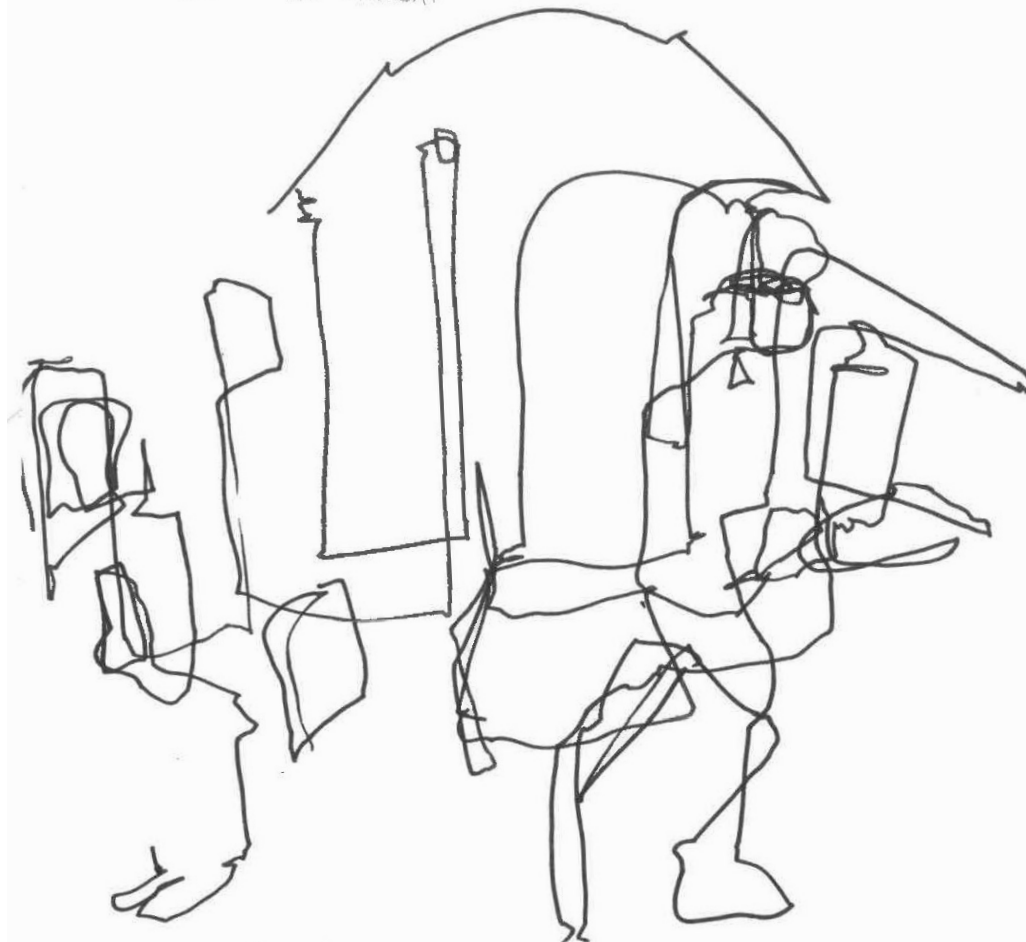

week 1. experiencing space.

space, whether reflected in the chaotic nature of blind drawing or properly organised through perspective vision, remains recognisable and retains the same character. probably, without perceiving space in an organised way, it would be difficult to understand the exact character of the location; however, the expressive manner helps reveal what grabbed the visitor's attention first.

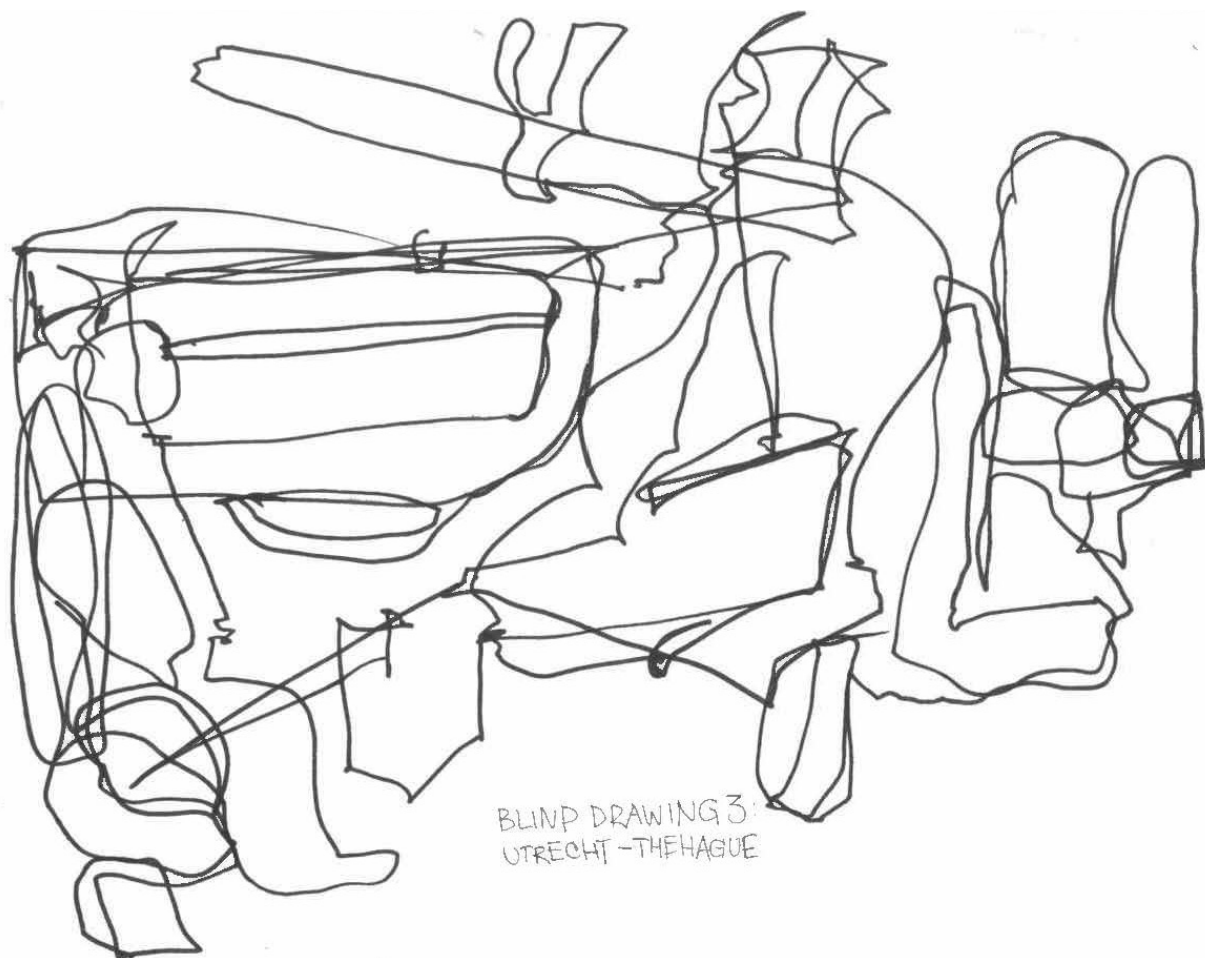

10 min observation

BLIND DRAWING 1
EINDHOVEN - UTRECHT

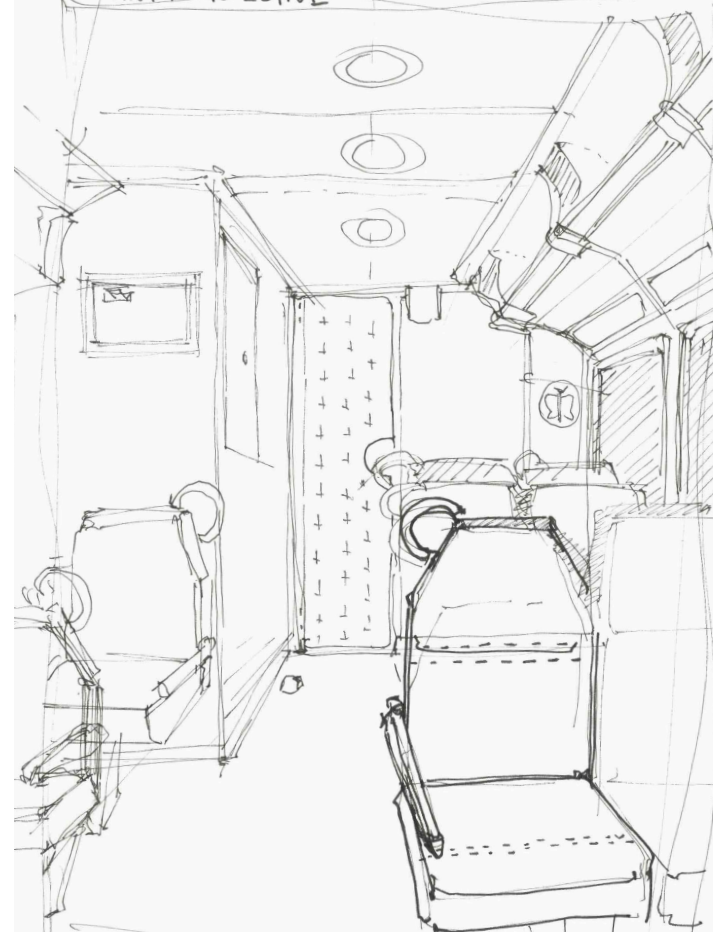

BLIND DRAWING 2:
EINDHOVEN - UTRECHT.

BLIND DRAWING 3:
UTRECHT - THE HAGUE

1 POINT PERSPECTIVE

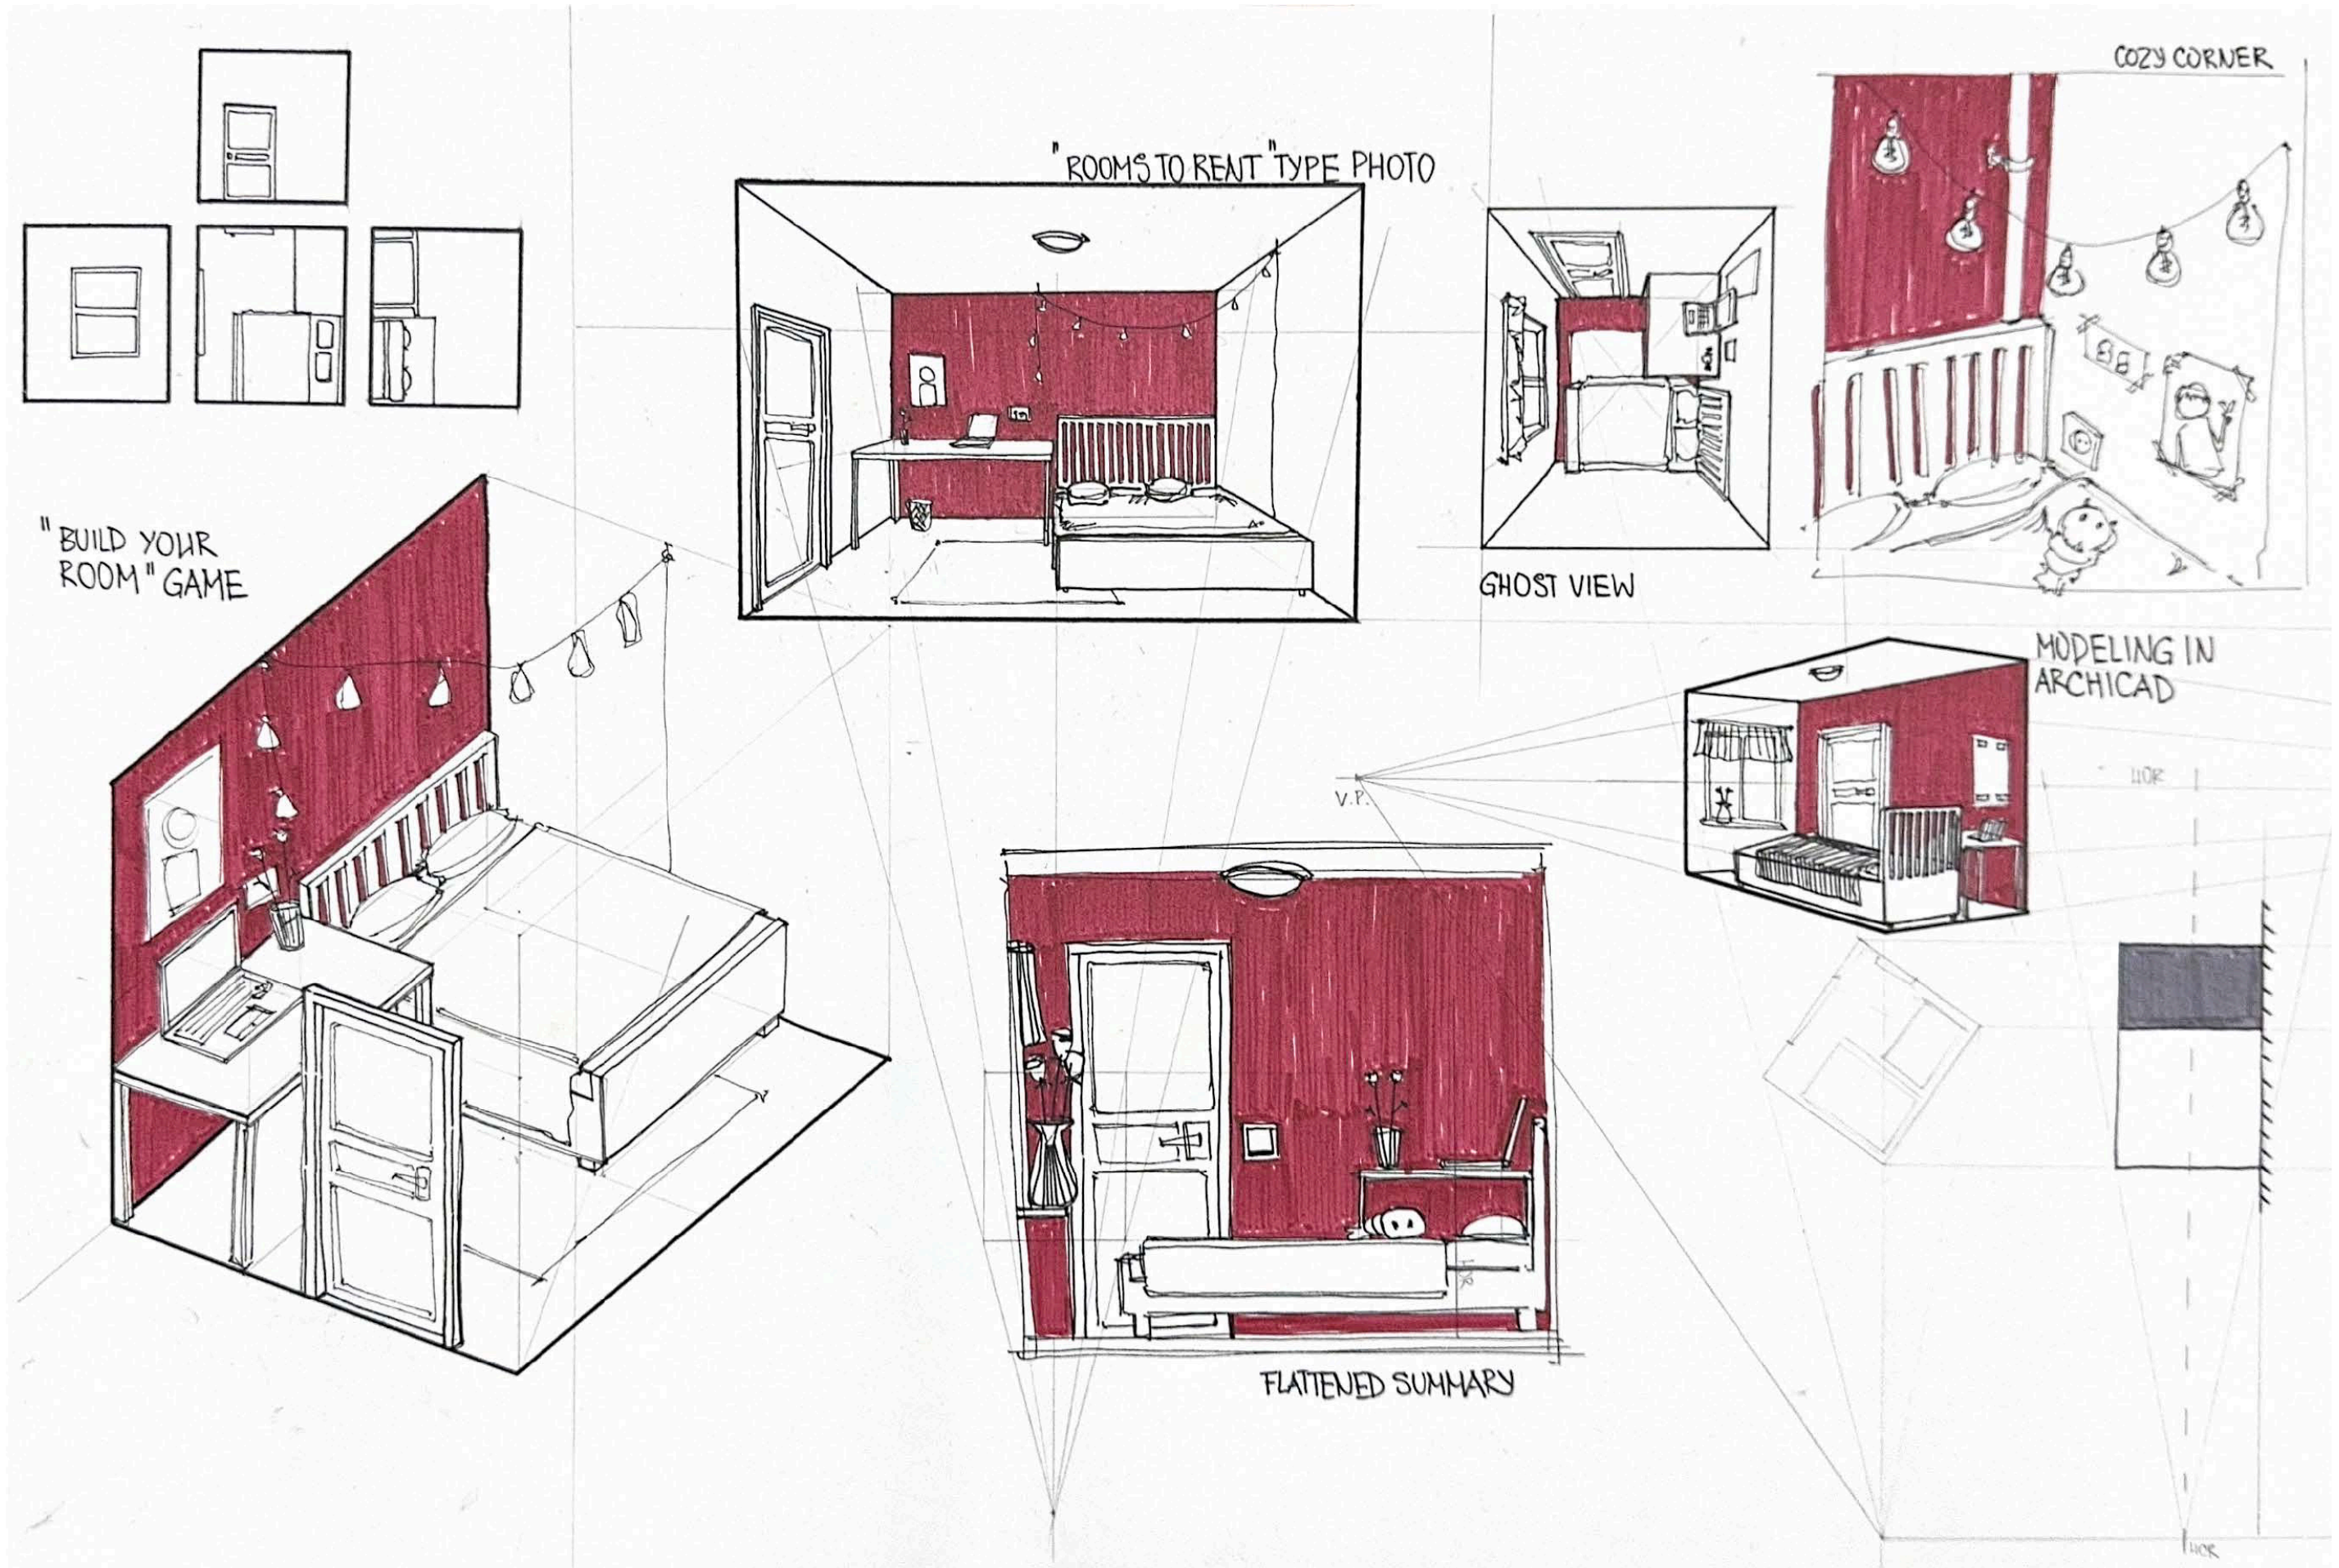

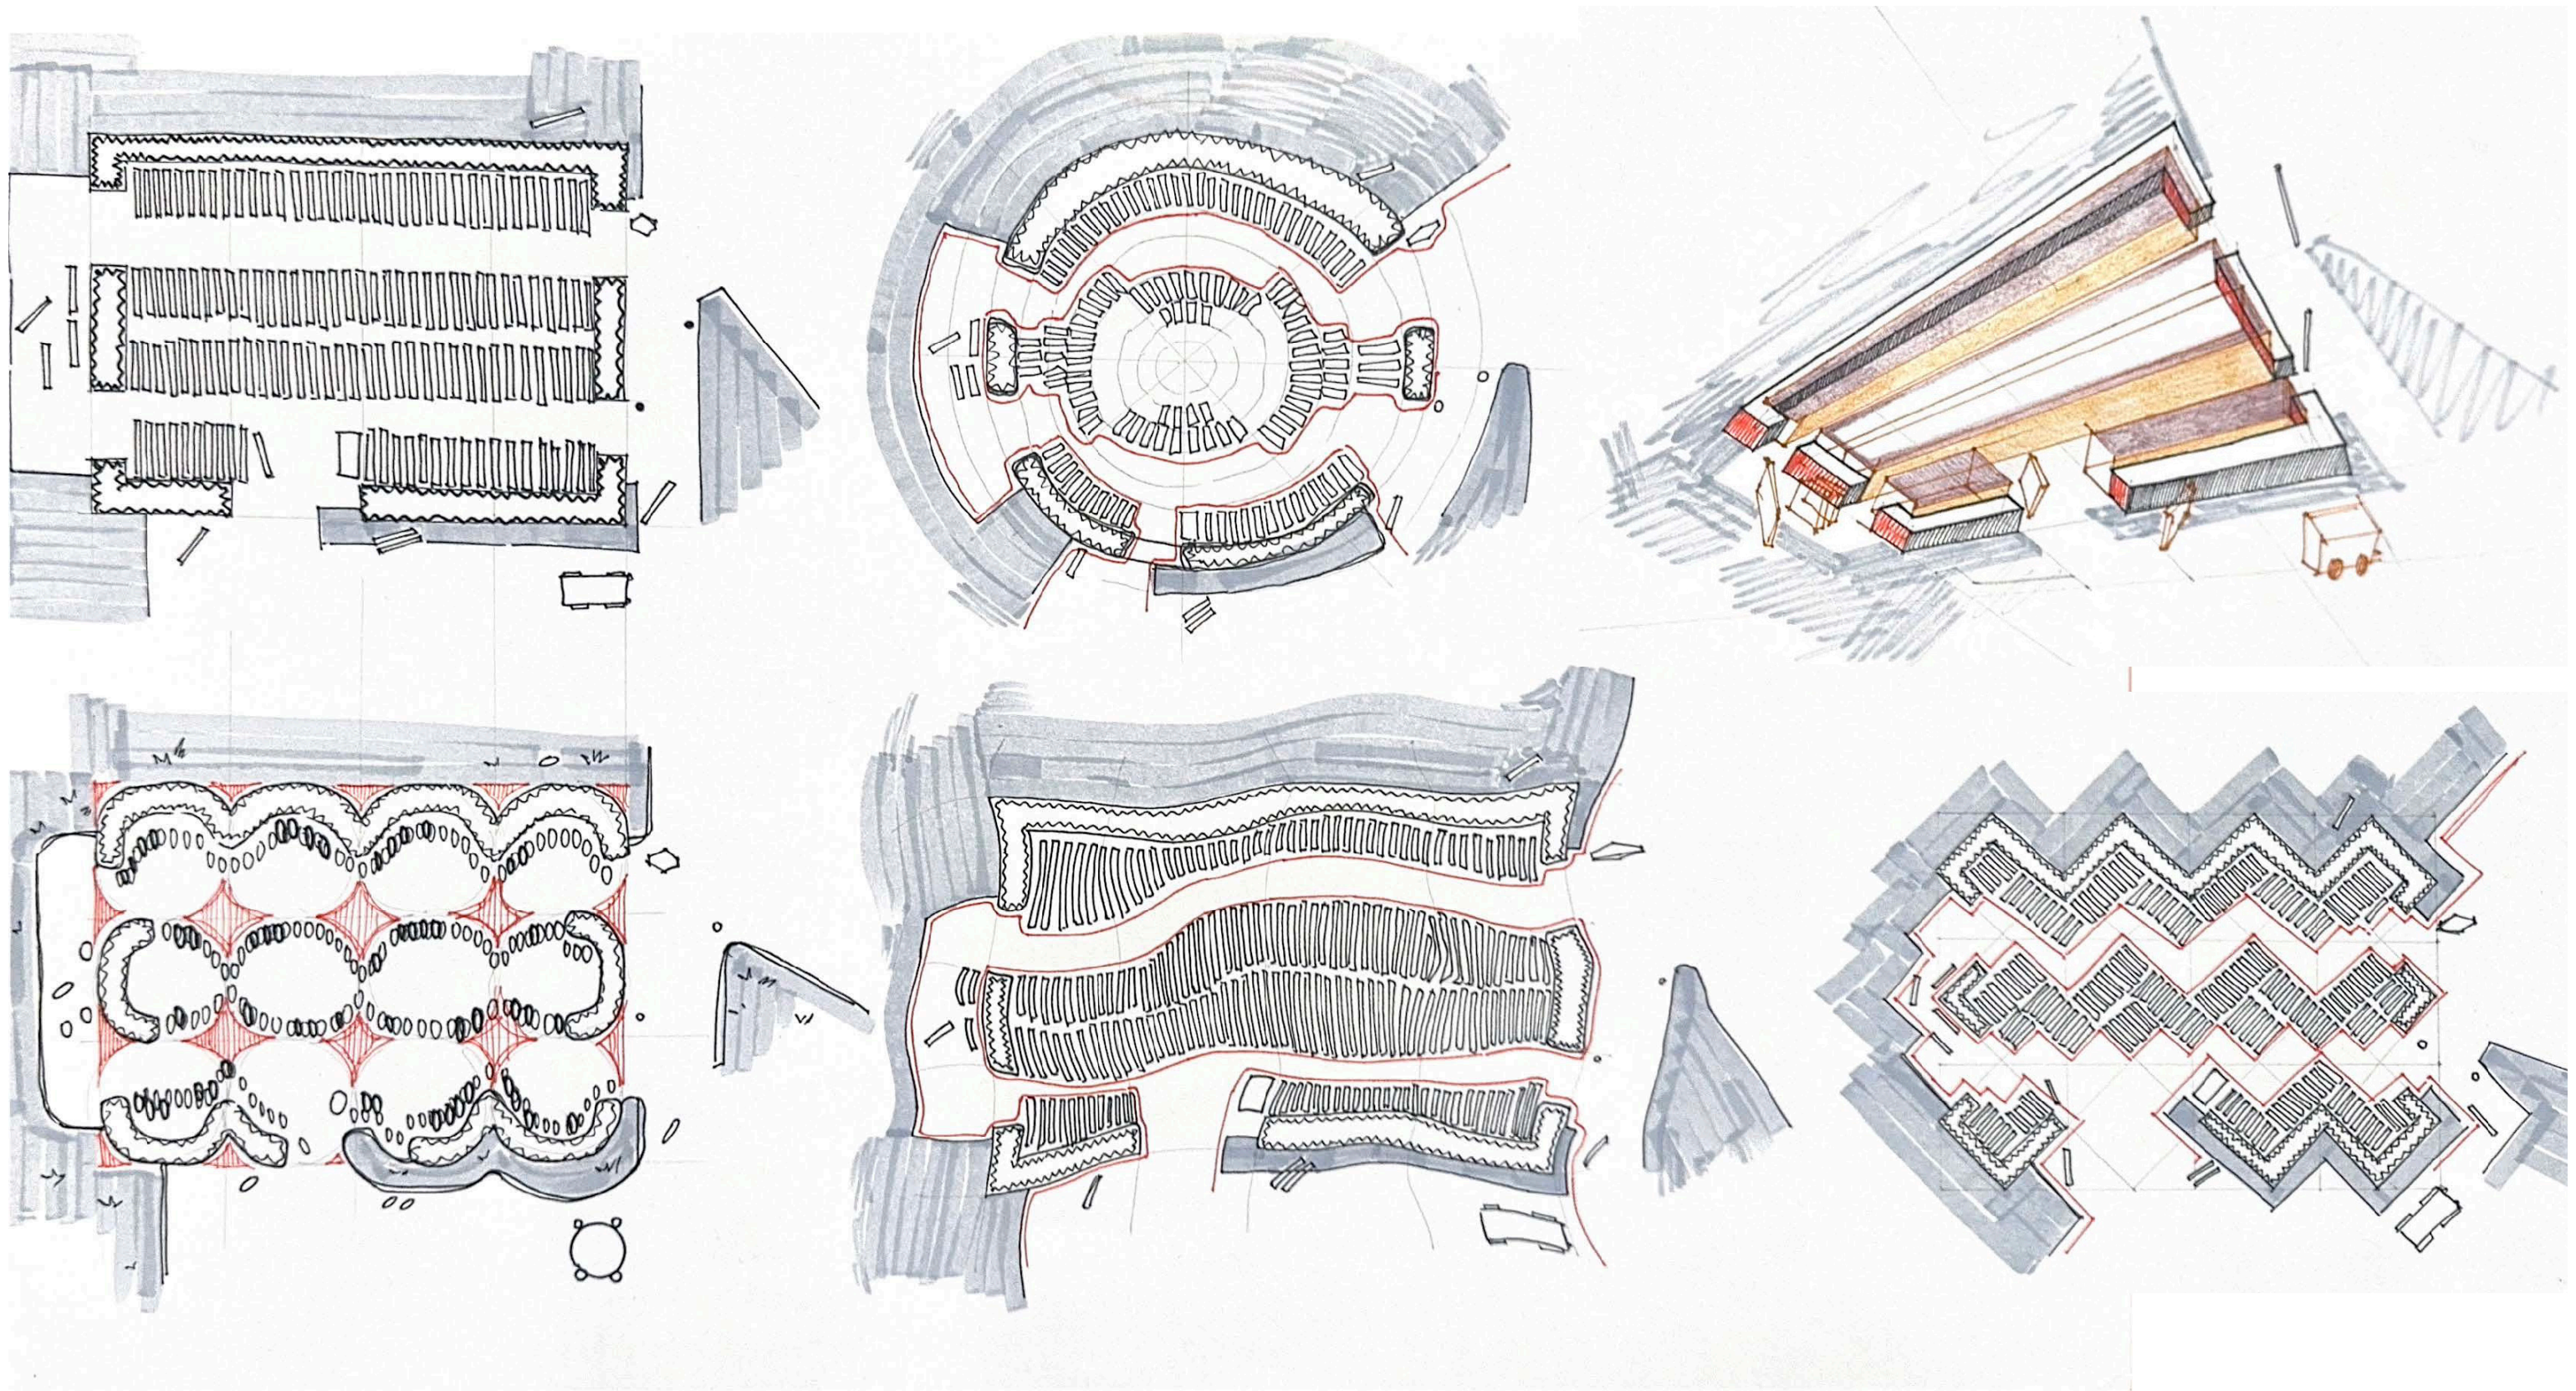

2 POINT PERSPECTIVE

week 2. drawing systems.

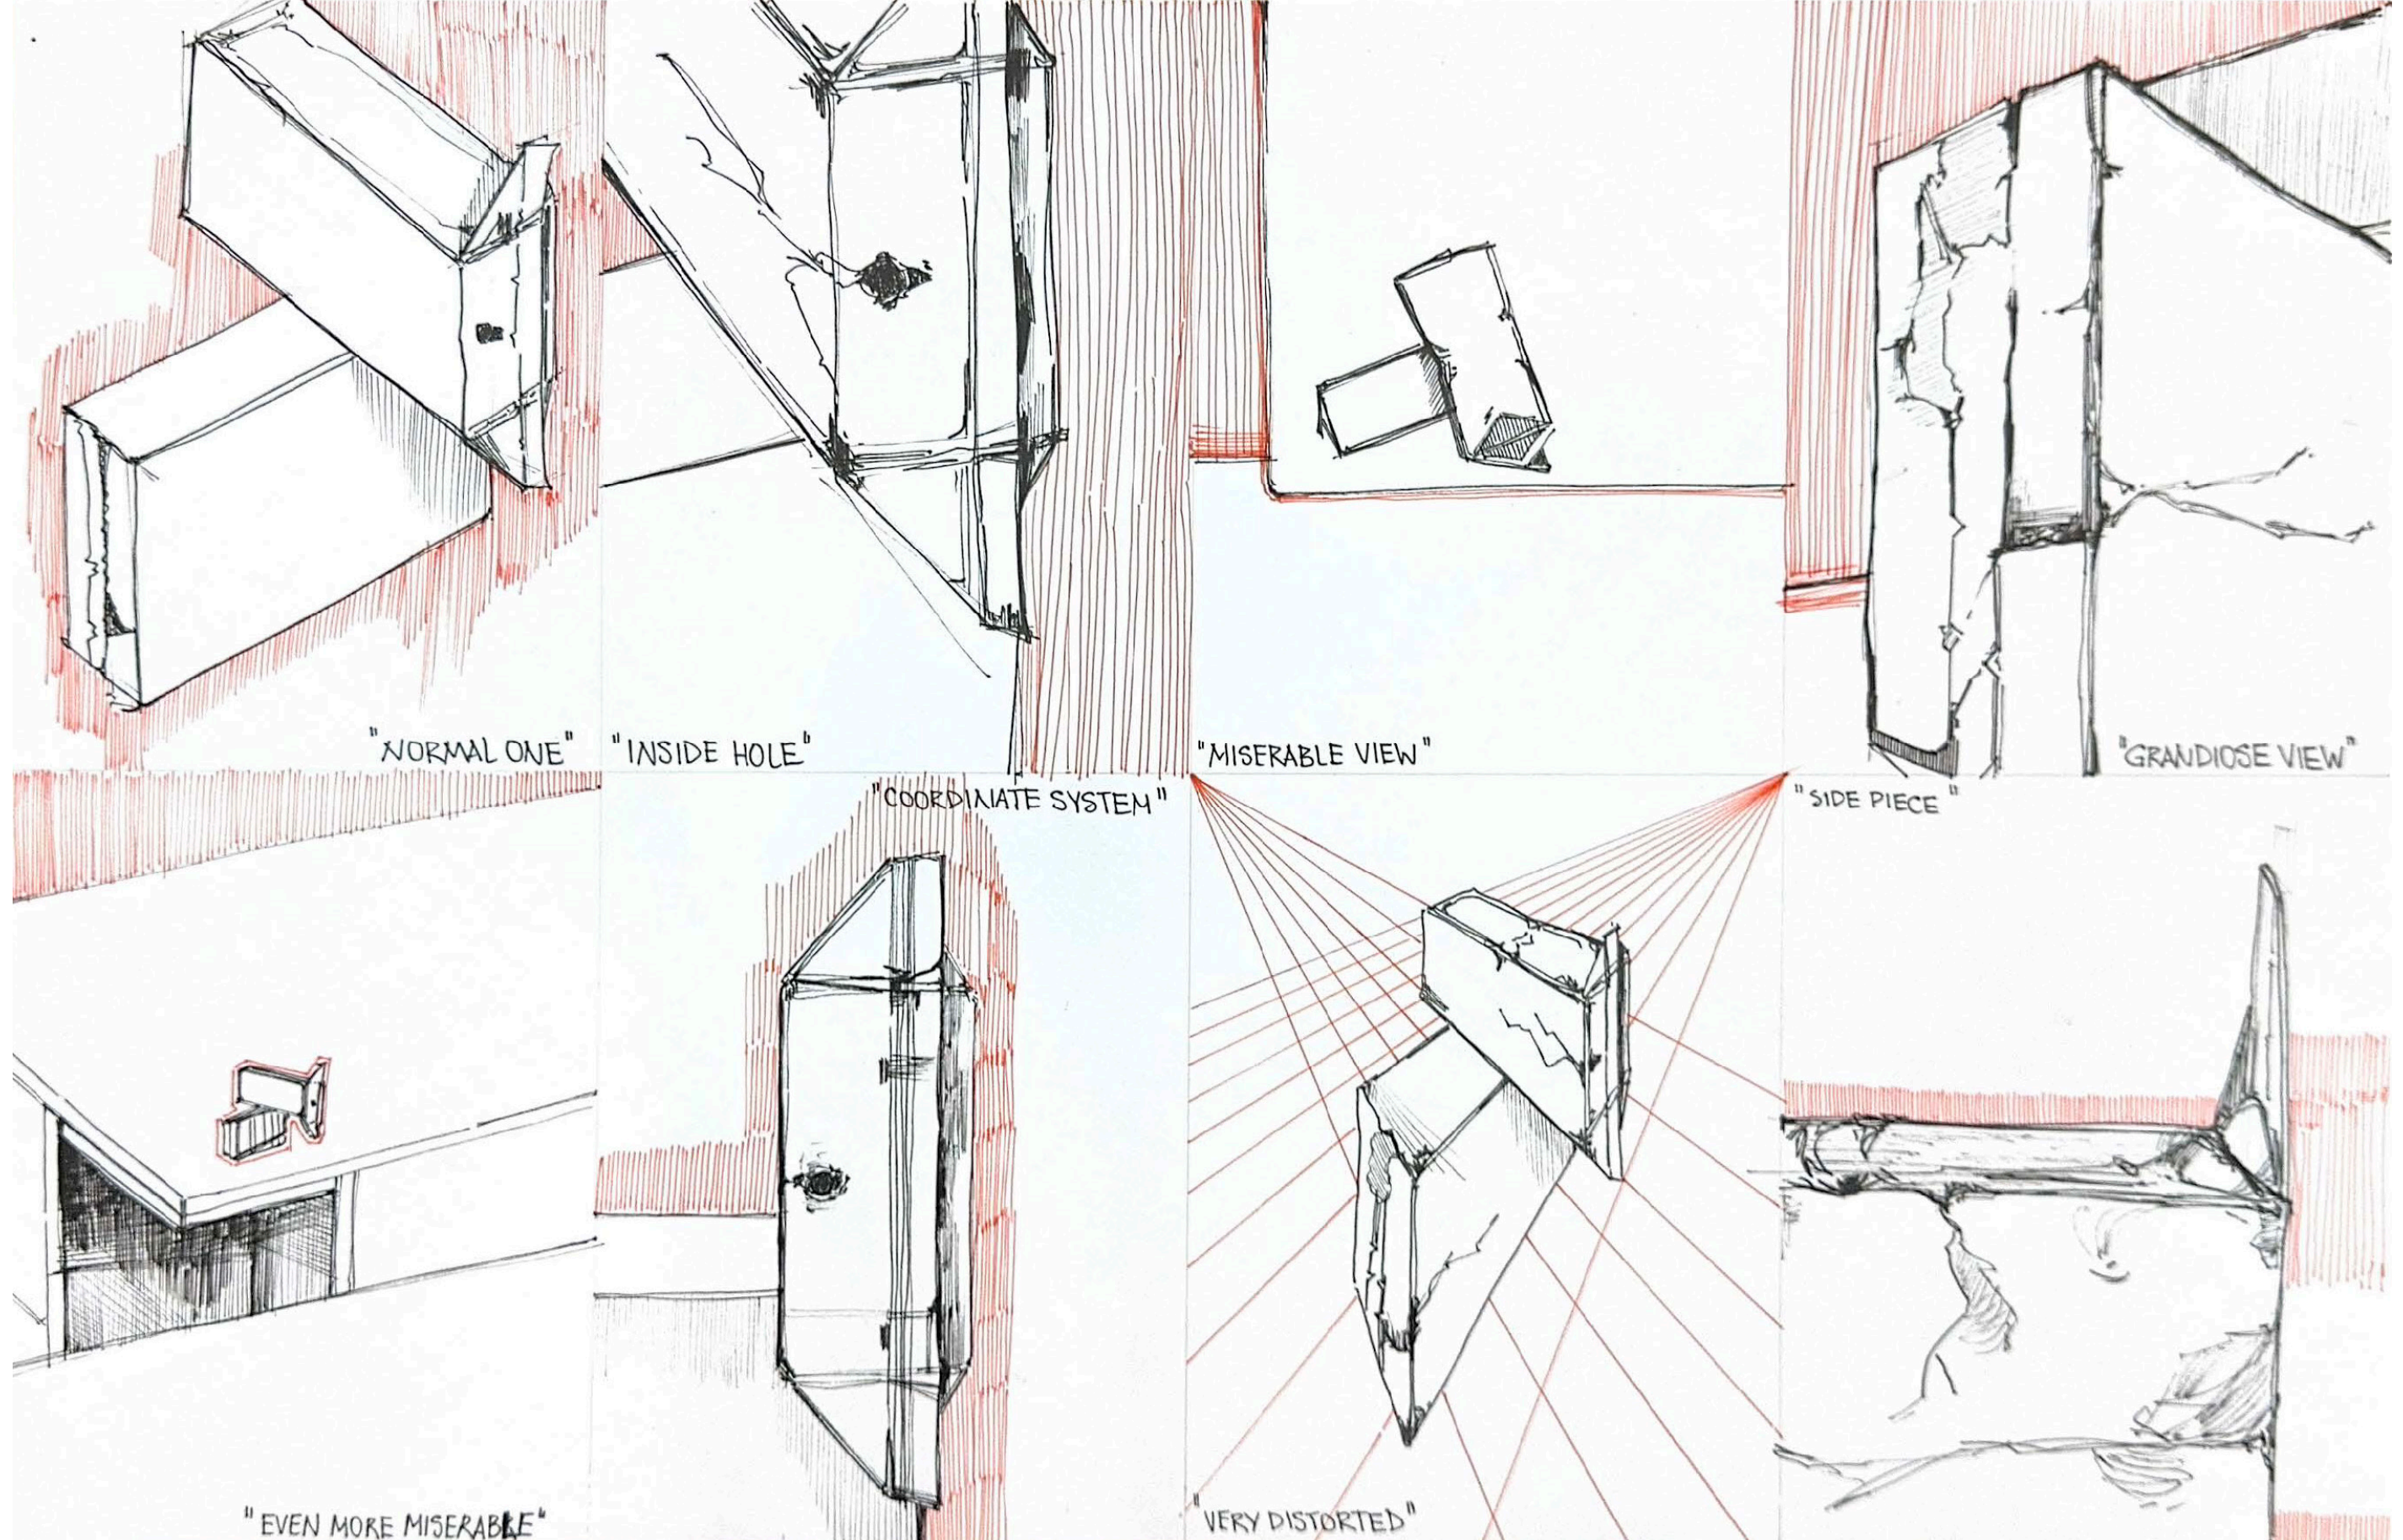

experiencing an already familiar space through different perspectives reveals its variability. each point of view shows something new about the same space: it could be strict, it could be cozy, or it could be simply "represented".

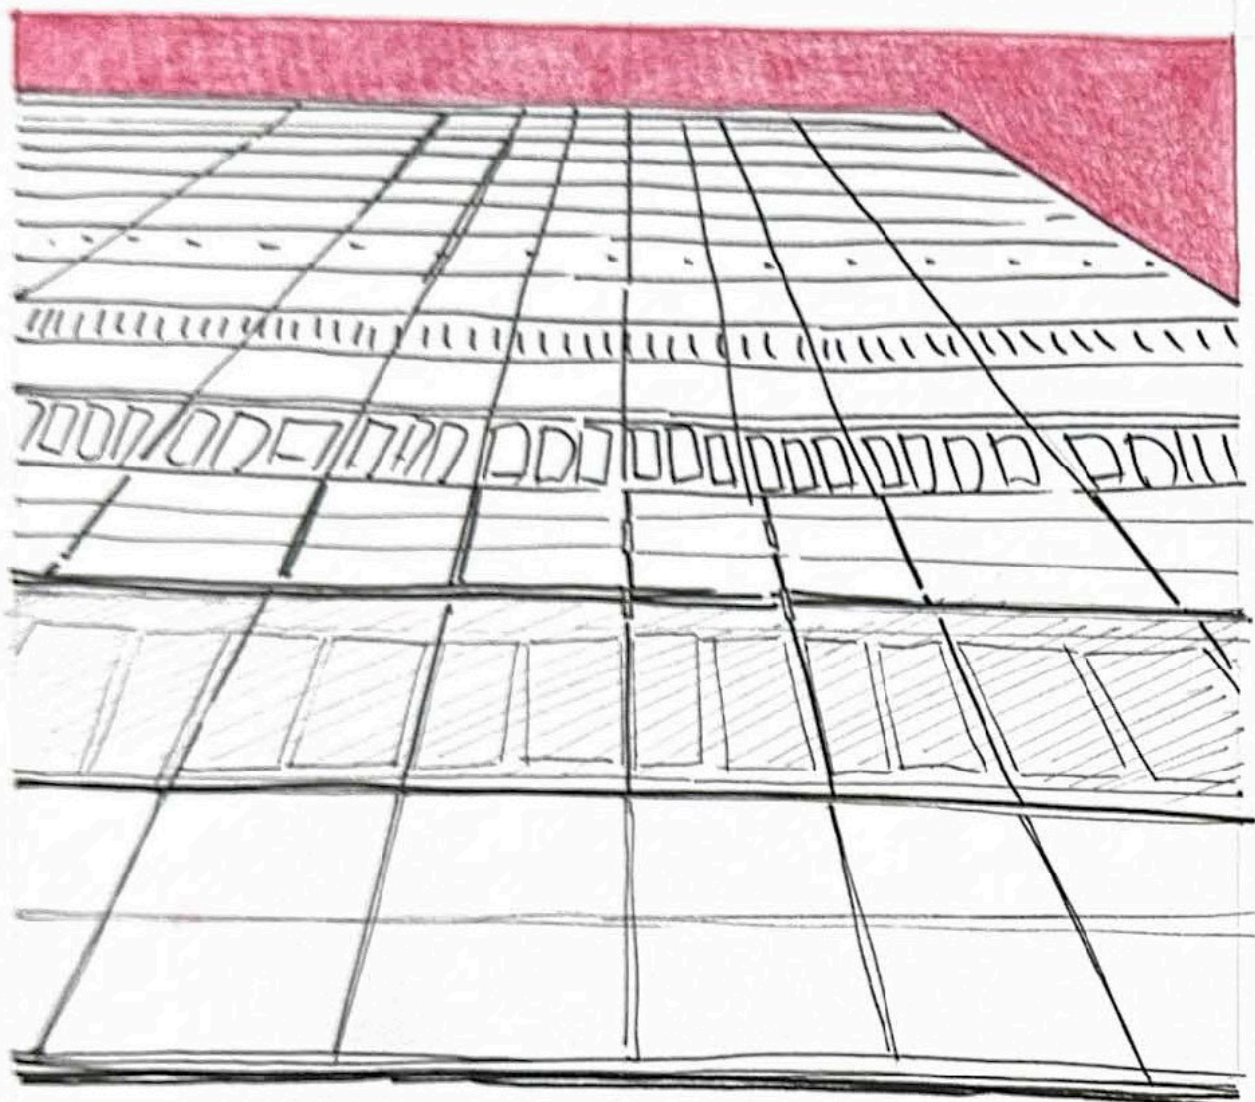

week 3. mapping space.

the ordinary parking lot was perceived through different geometrical abstractions. as descartes suggested, our world is a grid, a vast cartesian space in which objects relate to one another. but what if the grid were not square? what if it were not even?

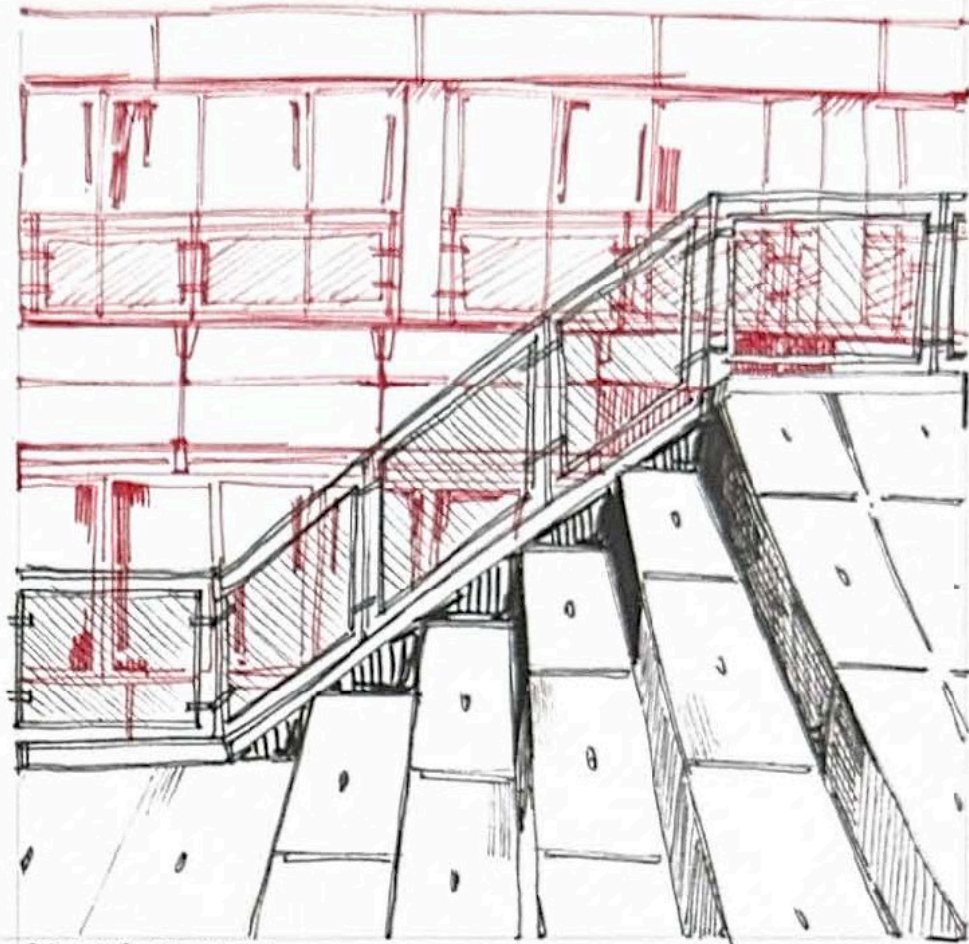

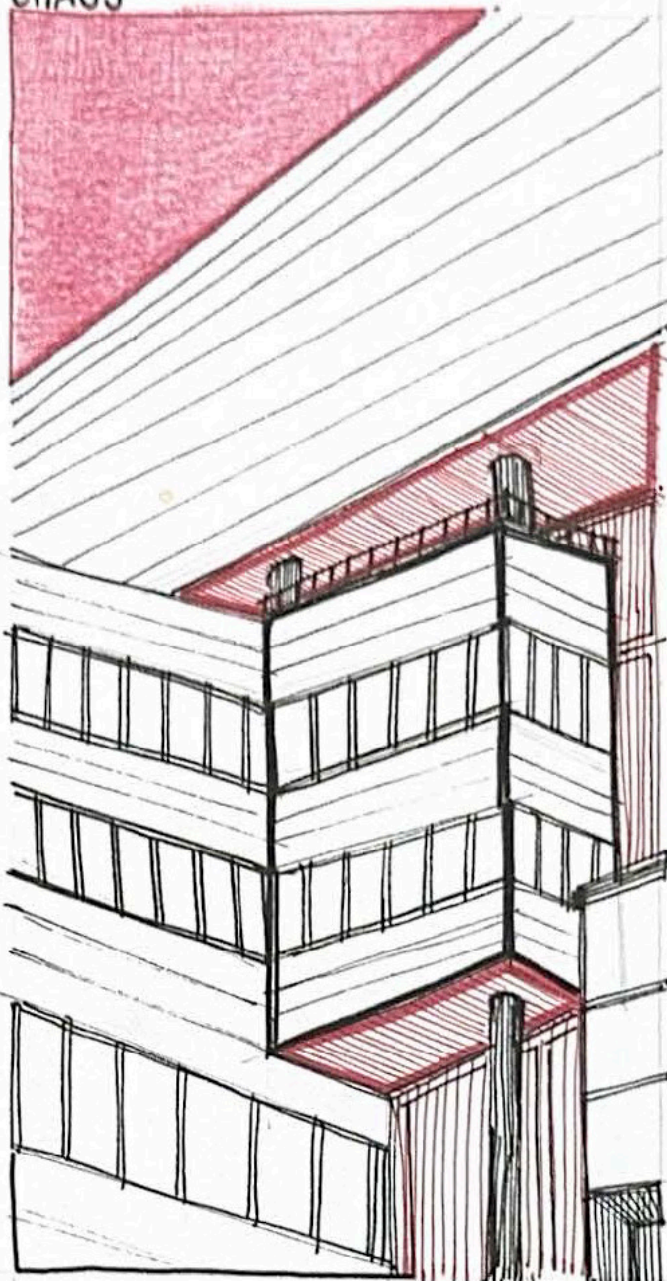

week 4. portraying.

portrait of a space from different points of view is an explorational study, seeking ways to express the character of an object (for larger spaces, it is more about atmosphere). each point of view reveals a different aspect of the object, even though it remains recognisable in the same manner from different angles.

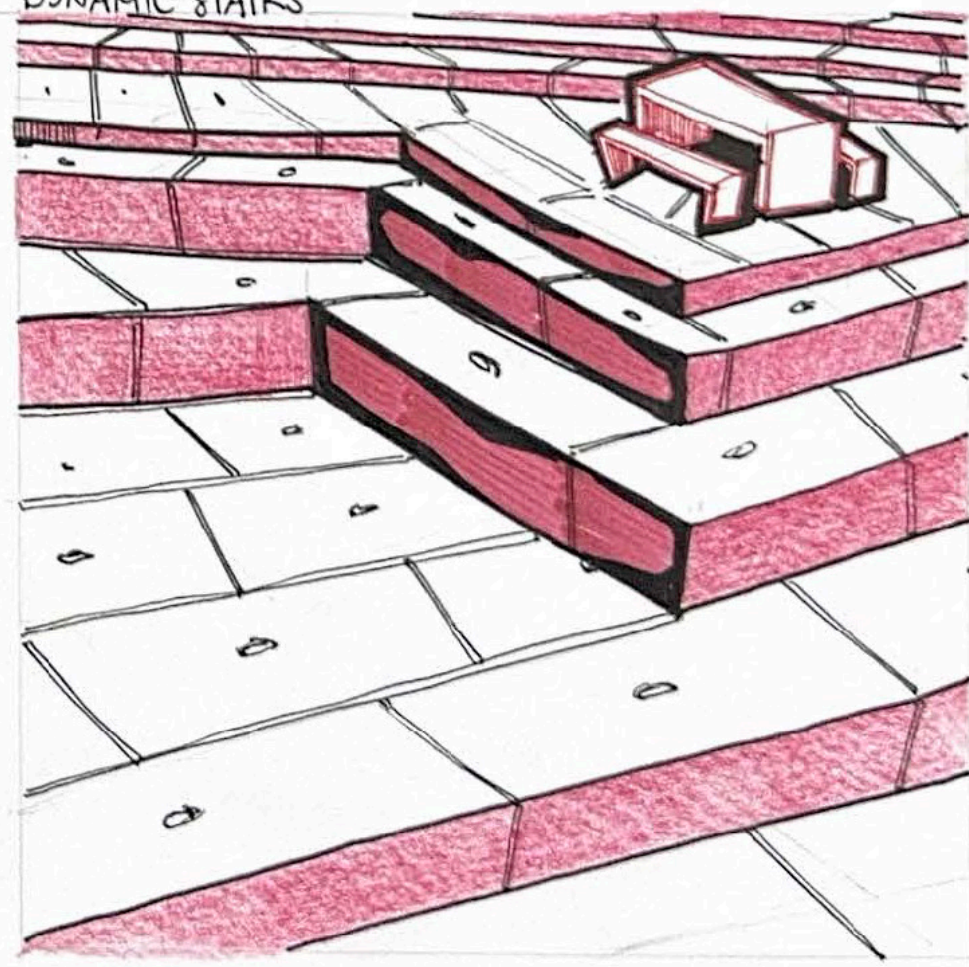

CHAOS

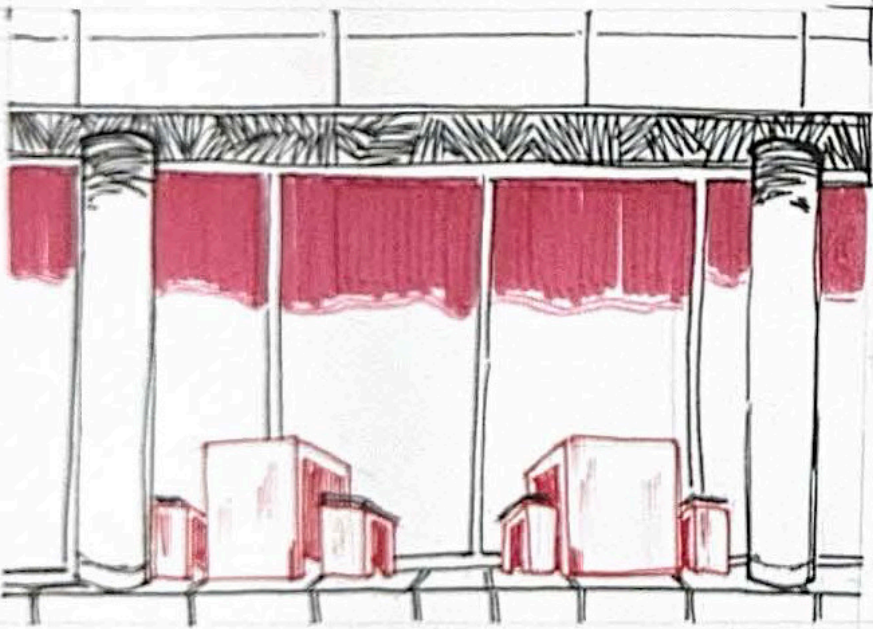

STATIC STAIRS

DYNAMIC STAIRS

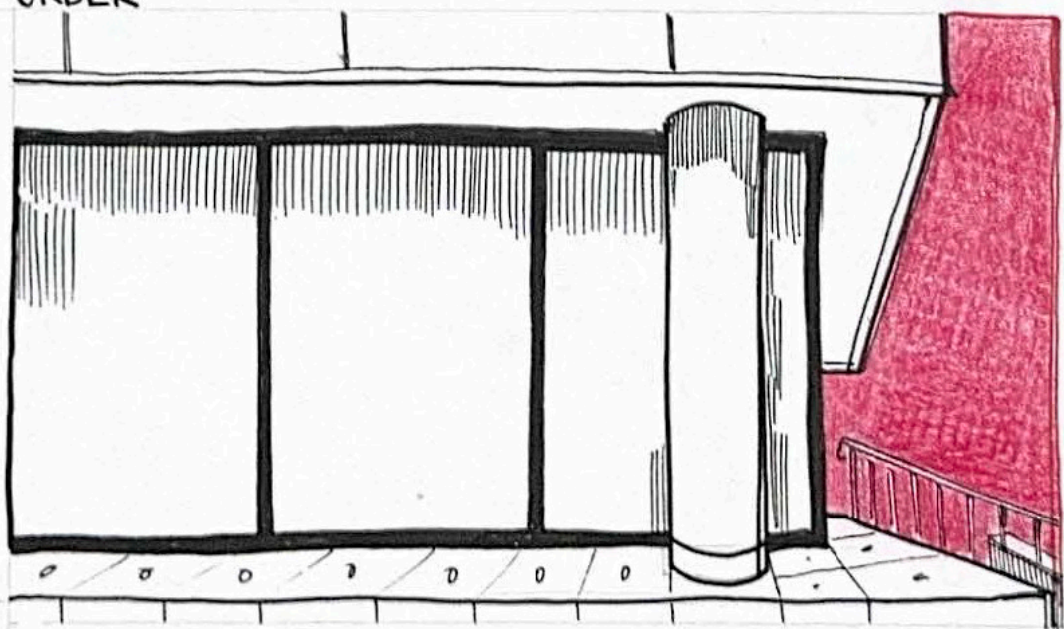

IMPOSING

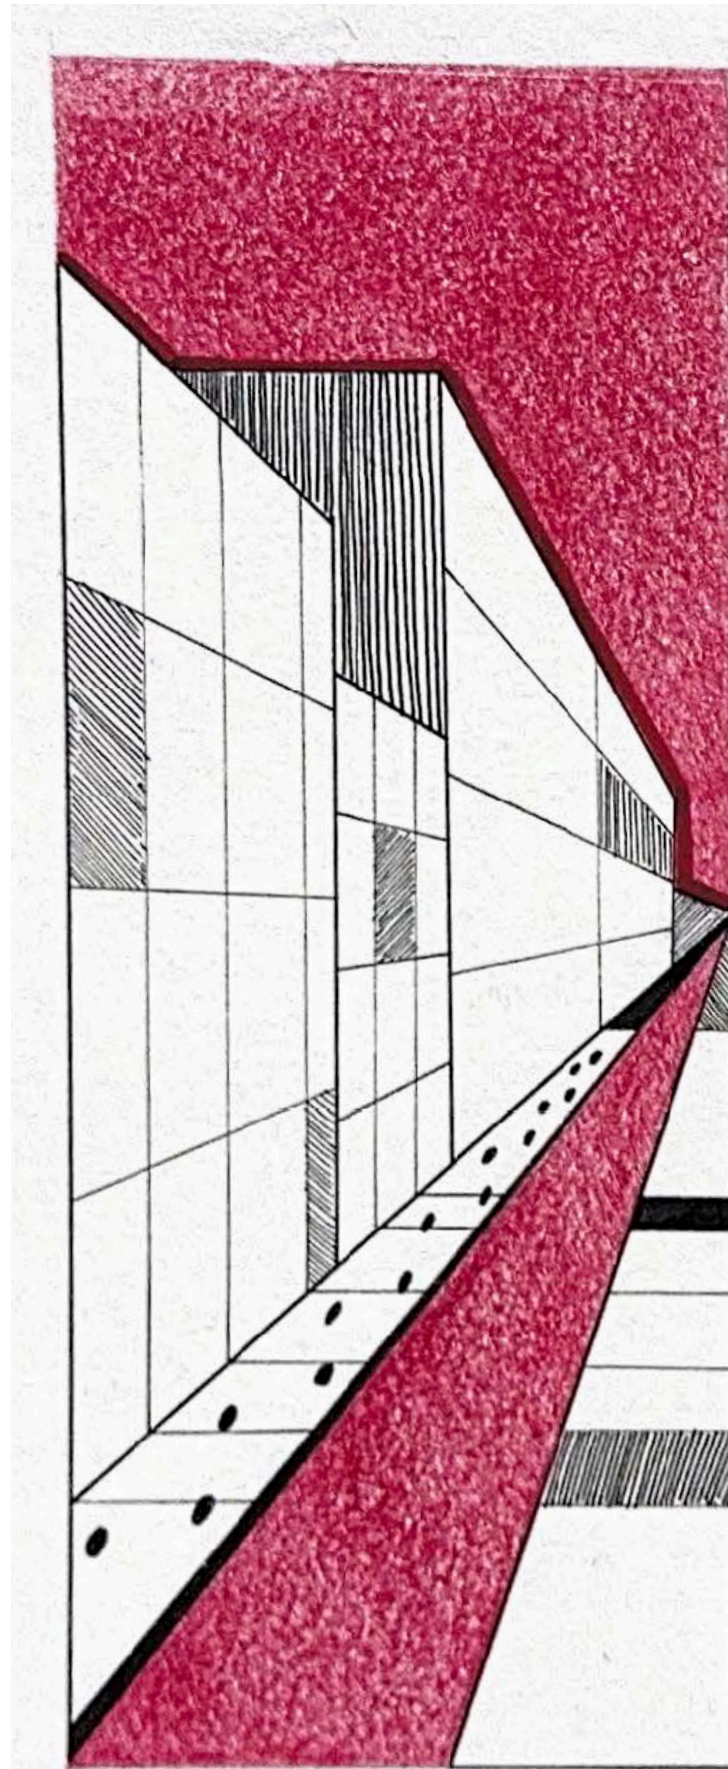

TINY

ORDER

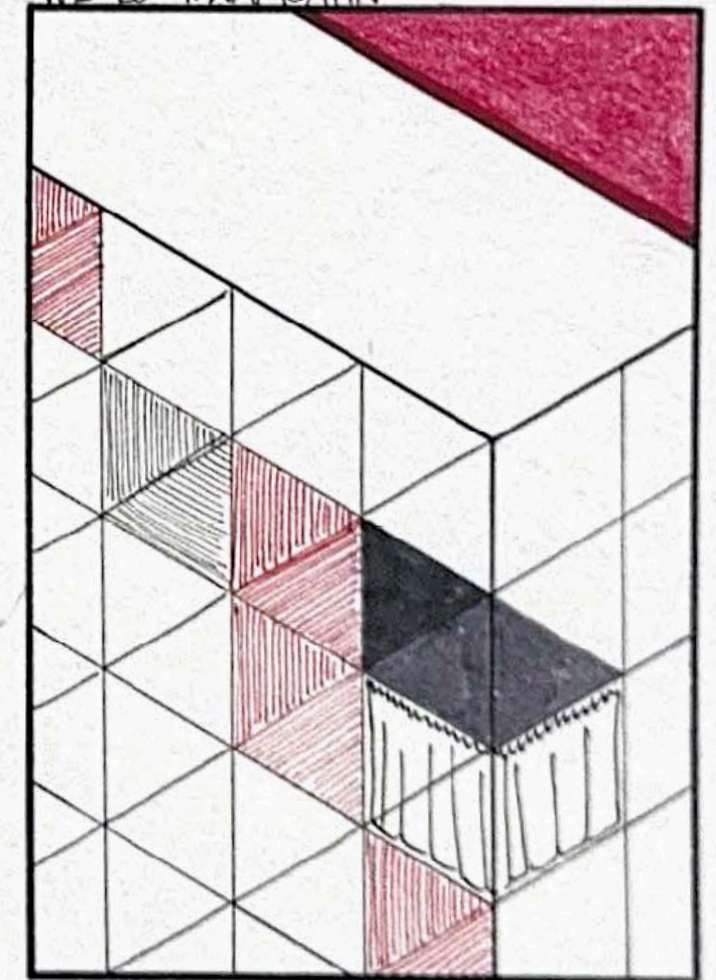

week 5. typography.

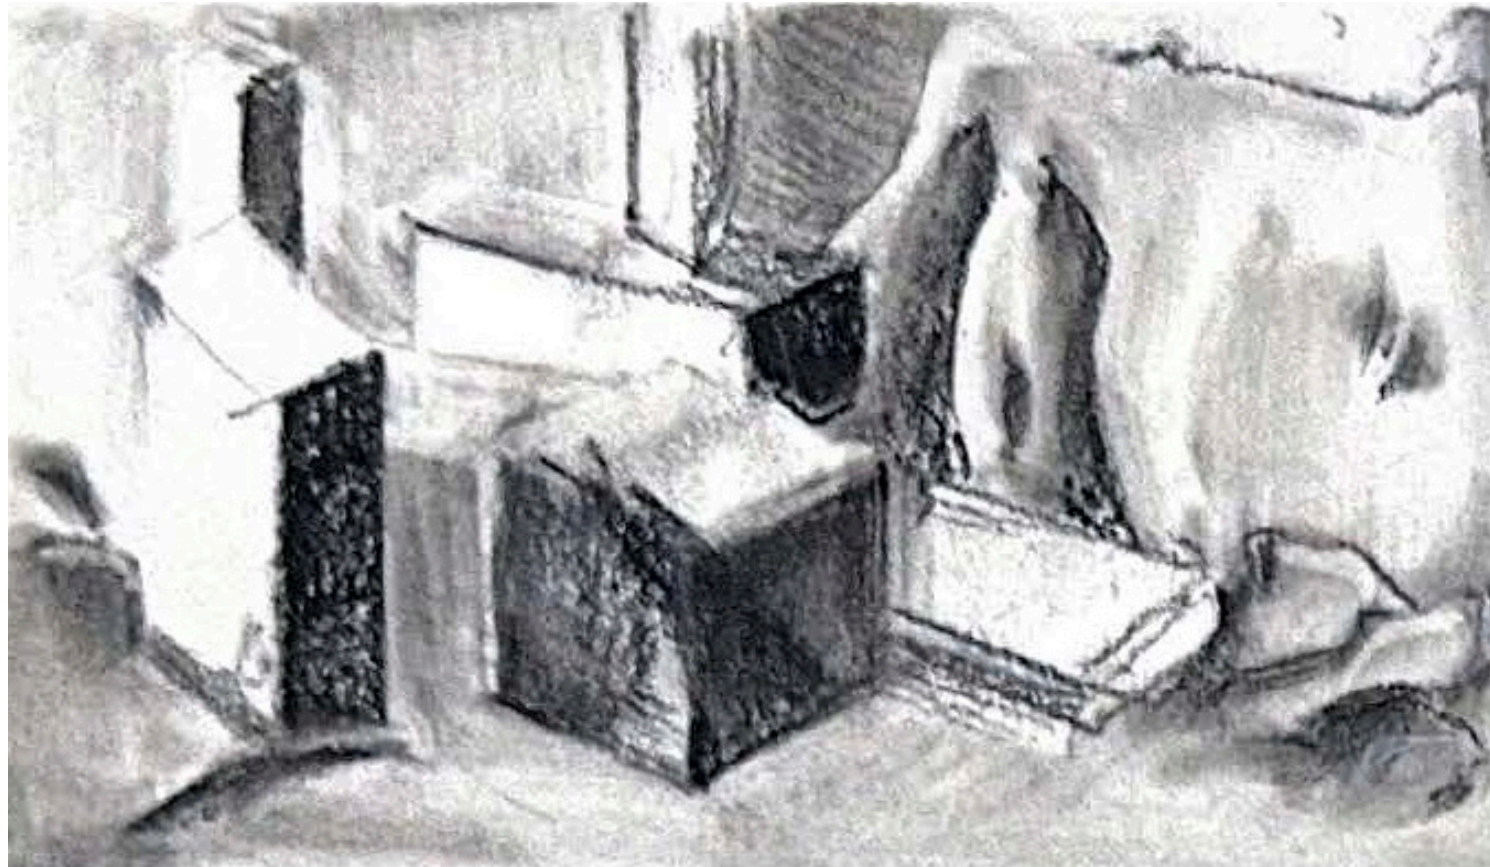

text near an image can also be a powerful tool for expressing an idea. this is how book illustrations work

WITHOUT A GOOD-BY, WITHOUT A BACKWARD GLANCE, I RUSHED OUT ALONG A SINUSOID. I ARGUED WITH MYSELF: AT
OF THE ROOM. HURRIEDLY PINNING ON THE BADGE AS I RAN, SKIP- NIGHT NUMBERS MUST SLEEP; IT IS THEIR DUTY, PING STEPS, DOWN THE STAIRWAY (AFRAID OF MEETING SOME- JUST AS IT IS THEIR DUTY TO WORK IN THE DAYTIME.
ONE IN THE ELEVATOR), I BURST OUT INTO THE EMPTY NOT SLEEPING AT NIGHT IS A CRIMINAL OFFENSE. ...
REET. EVERYTHING WAS IN ITS USUAL PLACE - SO SIM- AND YET I COULD NOT AND COULD NOT.
PLE, ORDINARY, NORMAL: THE GLASS HOUSES GLEAMING WITH LIGHTS, THE PALE GLASS SKY, THE MOTIONLESS GRE-ENISH NIGHT. BUT UNDER THIS COOL QUIET GLASS SOME-THING VIOLENT, BLOOD-RED, SHAGGY, RUSHED SOUNDLESSLY.
AND I RACED, GASPING, NOT TO BE LATE. SUDDENLY I FELT THE HASTILY PINNED BADGE LOOSENING - IT SLIPPED OFF, CLICKING ON THE GLASS PAVEMENT. I BENT DOWN TO PICK IT UP, AND IN THE MOMENTARY SILENCE HEARD THE STAMP-PING OF FEET BEHIND ME. I TURNED - SOMETHING LITTLE, BOWED, SLUNK OUT FROM AROUND THE CORNER, OR SO IT SE-EMED TO ME AT THE TIME. I RUSHED ON AT FULL SPEED, THE AIR
WHISTLING IN MY EARS. AT THE ENTRANCE I STOPPED: THE WAT-CH SHOWED ONE MINUTE BEFORE TWENTY-TWO AND A HALF. I LISTENED - THERE WAS NO ONE BEHIND ME. OBVI-OUSLY IT HAD ALL BEEN A PREPOSTEROUS FANTASY, THE EFFECT OF A POISON. IT WAS A NIGHT OF TORMENT. MY I AM PERISHING. I AM UNABLE TO FULFILL MY OB-BED ROSE AND SANK AND ROSE AGAIN UNDER ME, FLO- LIGATIONS TO THE ONE STATE. ... I ...

"WE" BY Y. ZAMJATIN

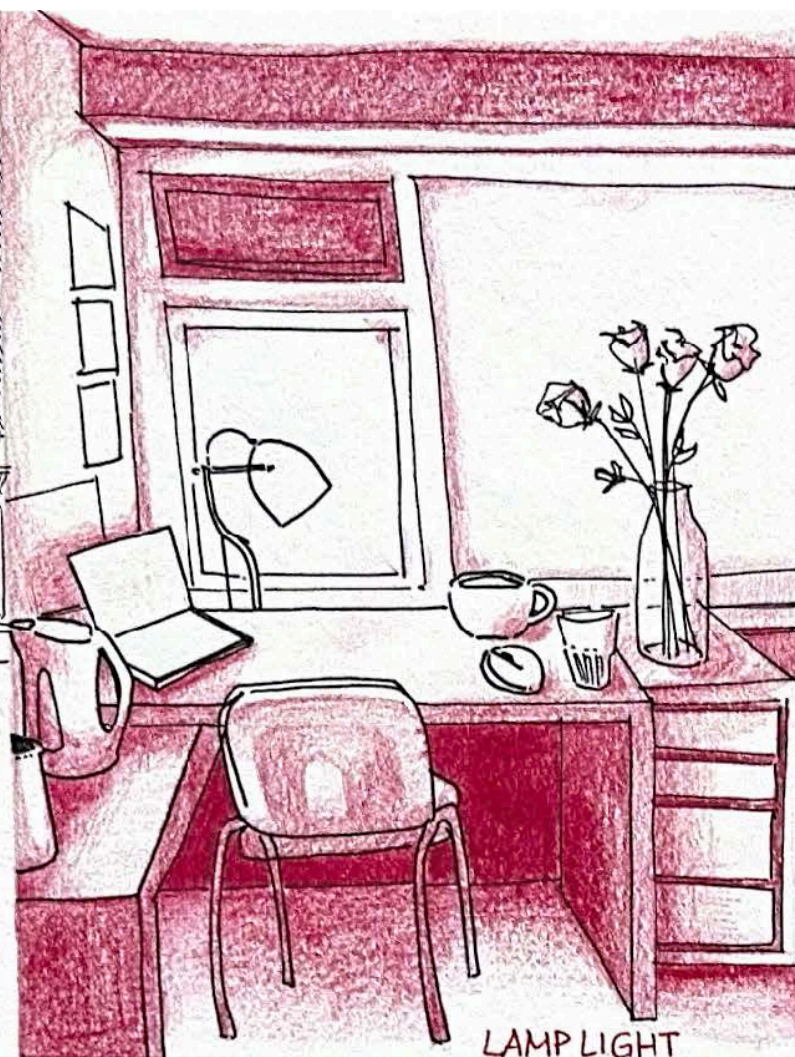

week 6. tone and shadow.

toning according to different available light sources and materials helps to express different aspects of lighting. it could be a strict black-and-white division or the softness of half-shadow, but the idea of objects remaining in the same composition while only the light changes creates the needed atmosphere

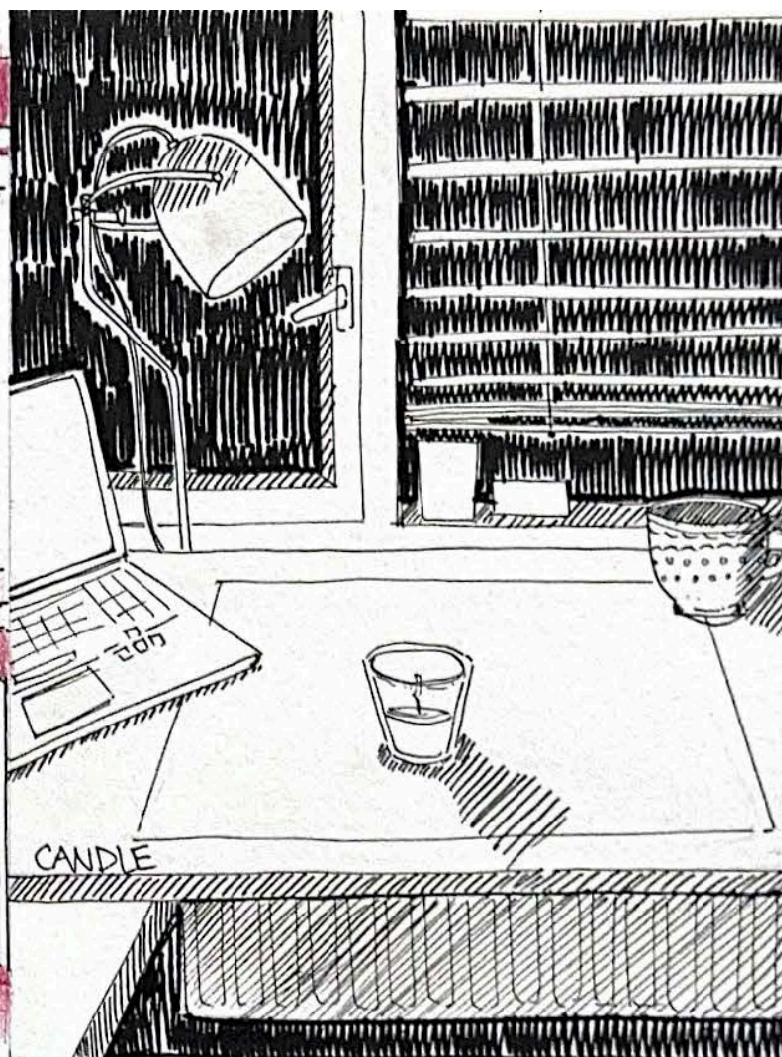

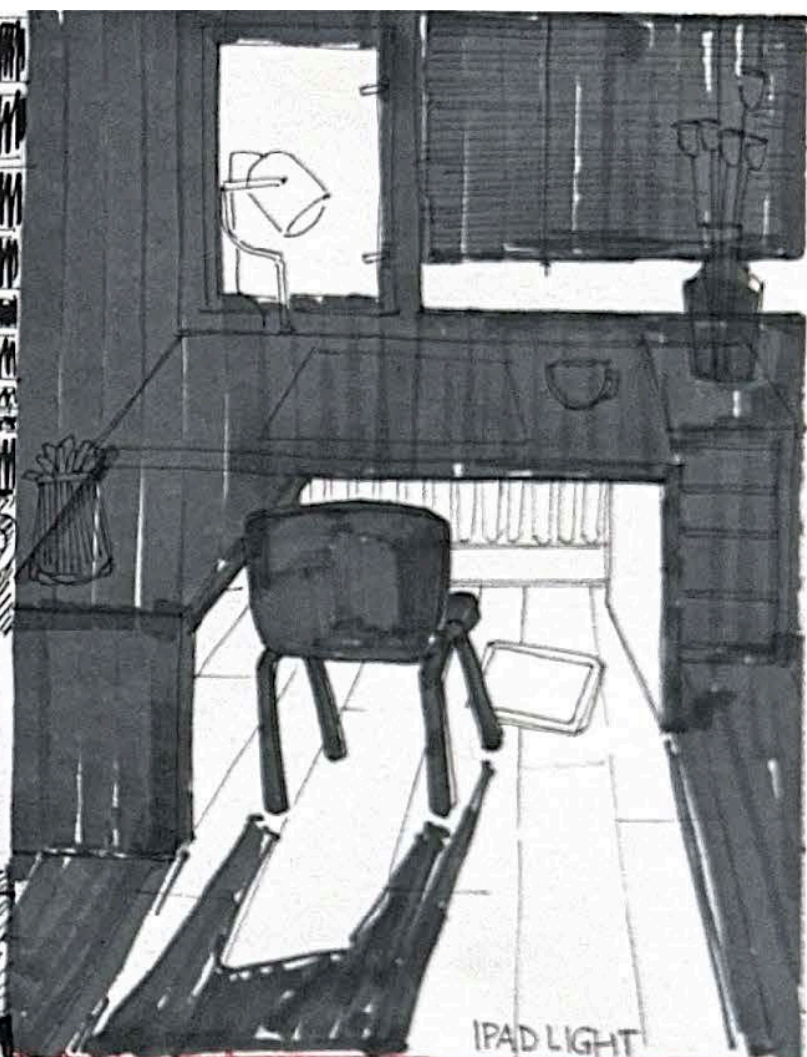

TOPLIGHT

LAMPLIGHT

CANDLE

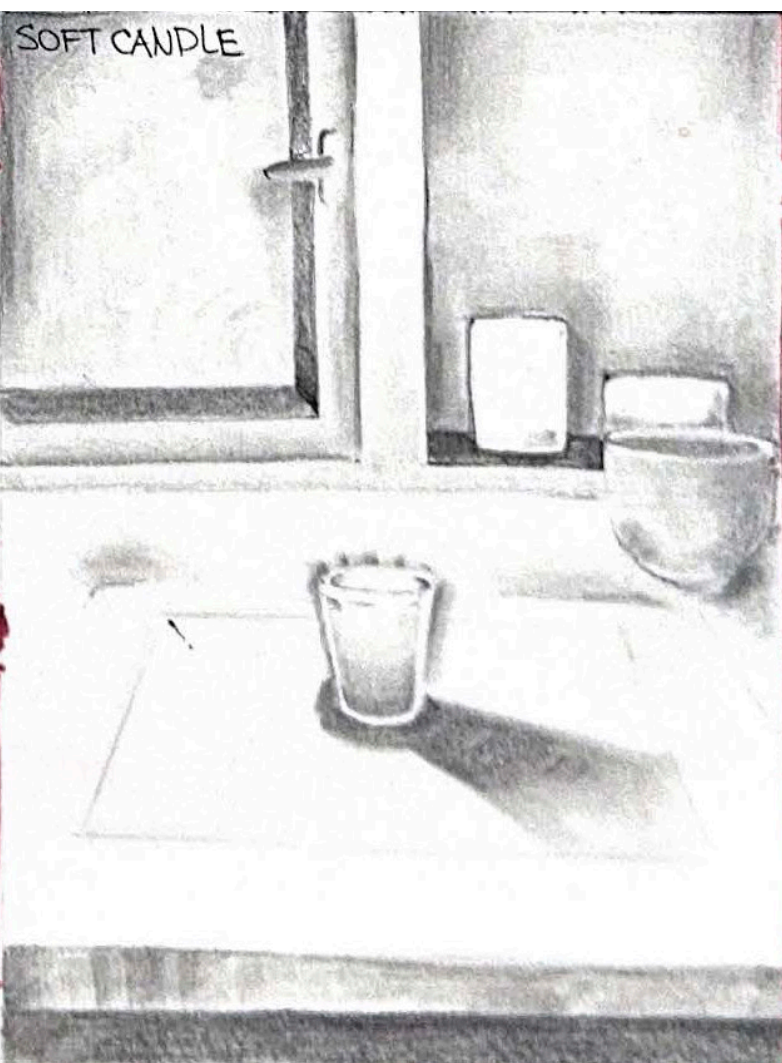

IPAD LIGHT

TOPLIGHT B/W

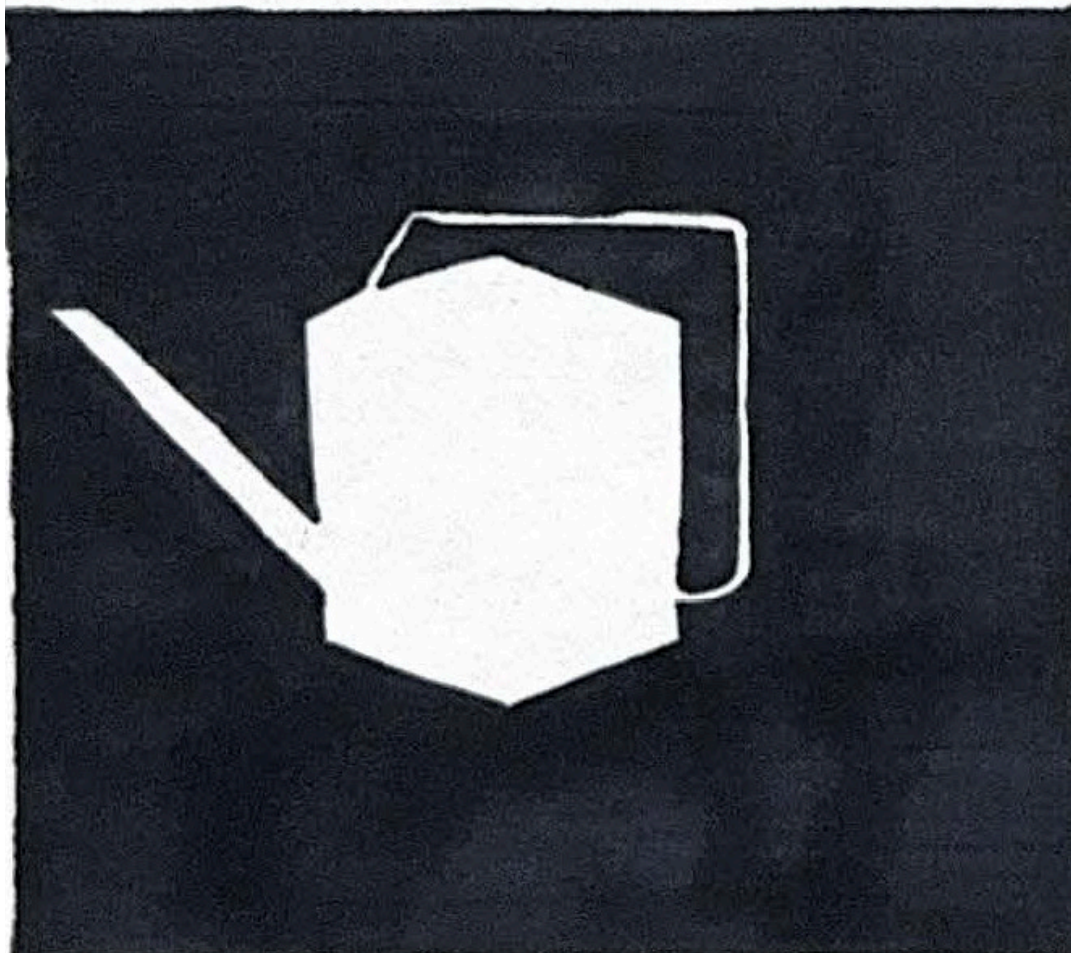

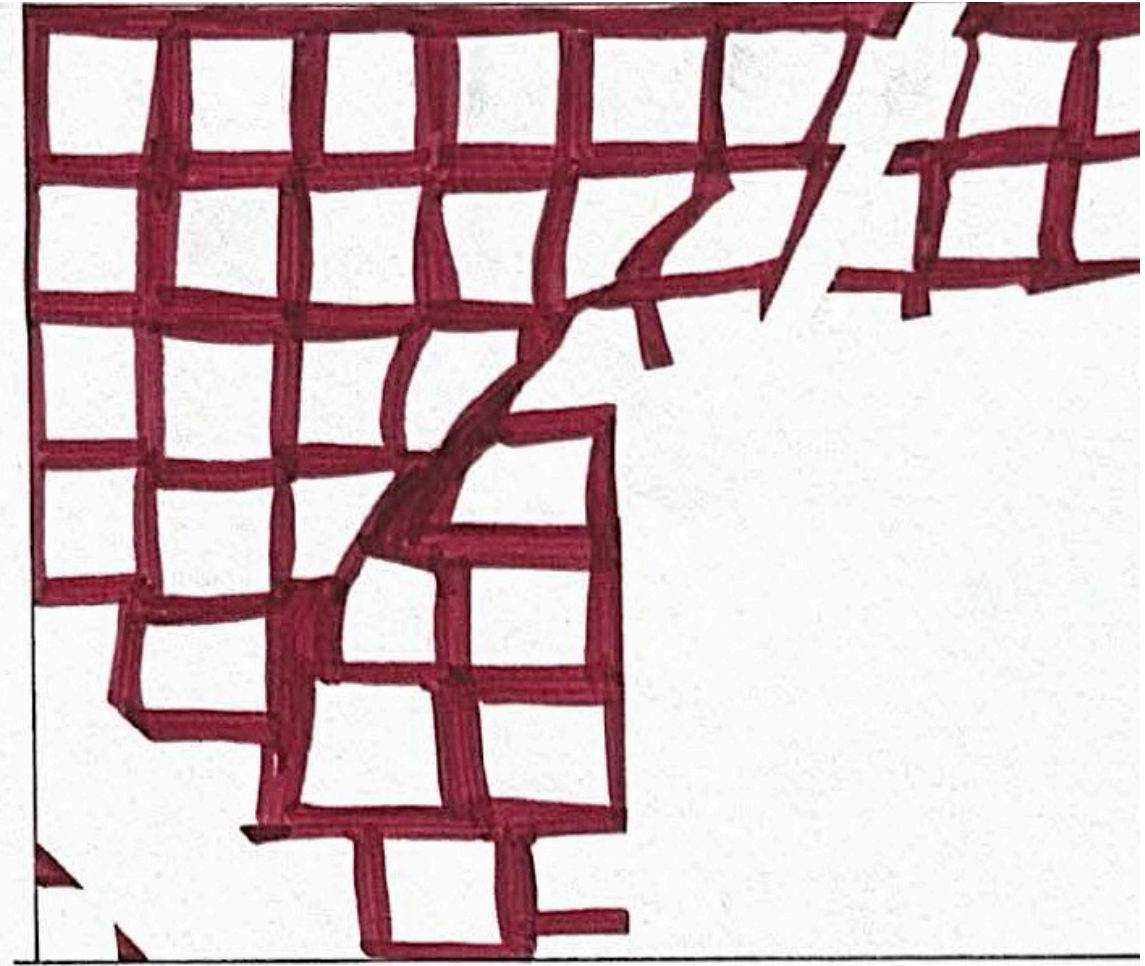

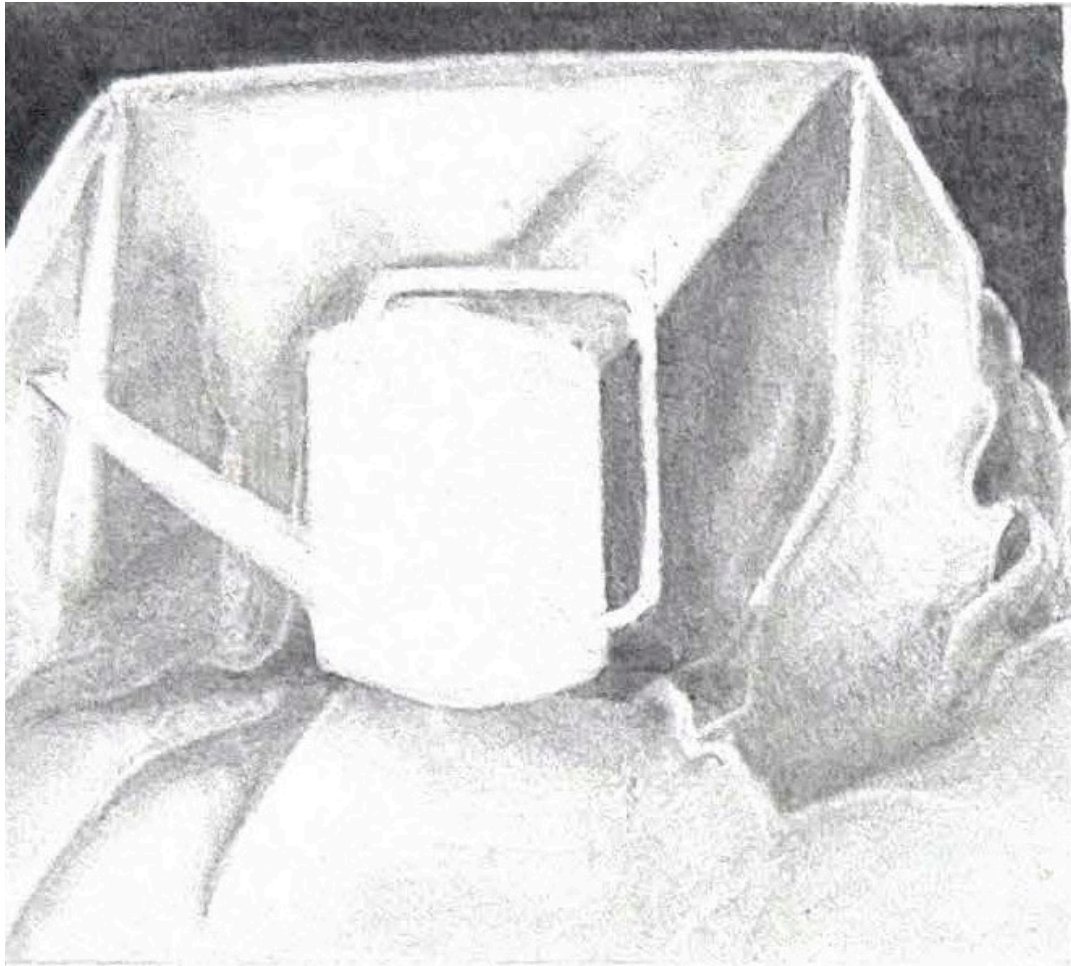

LAMPLIGHT B/W

SOFT CANDLE

IPAD LIGHT DISTORTED COLOUR

week 7. form.

the background could also be the main character. the foreground as well. who decides what exactly is the main focus and what is not? is it that obvious? what would happen if we shifted the focus to the background? how many attempts would it take to make the background the main character?

